Judgement

Mukul Mudgal, C.J.—Leaned Single Judge of this Court while hearing the criminal appeals noticed that in some of the cases, the remissions were granted to the convicts more than the actual sentence they had undergone. In his order dated 19.11.2008, learned Single Judge has taken a note of the following three cases wherein the convicts had availed remission period more than that of the actual sentence undergone by them:

i) Crl. Appeal No. 1707-SB of 2003 Prithvi Kumar Dass v. State of Punjab decided on 7.8.2008:

In case FIR No. 56 dated 6.2.2002 u/s 376 IPC, the appellant was convicted on 6.8.2003 by the Court of Sh. S.N. Aggarwal, the then learned Sessions Judge, Jalandhar and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of ten years. As per the custody certificate presented before this Court, the appellant was released from jail on 26.11.2006 after having undergone actual sentence for a period of 4 years 6 months and 20 days and availing the remissions to the extent of 5 years, 5 months and 10 days.

ii) Crl. Appeal No. 964 of 2003 Mohinder Pal v. State of Punjab

In yet another case (FIR No. 73 dated 21.4.2002 under Sections 376/511 of the Indian Penal Code), the appellant was convicted on 7.3.2003 by the Court of Shri Sanjeev Berry, the then learned Addl. Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Kapurthala, and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of seven years. As per the custody certificate, presented before this Court, the appellant was released from jail on 19.11.2005 after having undergone actual sentence for a period of 2 years, 7 months and 20 days and availing the remissions to the extent of 4 years, 4 months and 10 days.

iii) Crl. Appeal No. 715-SB of 2004 Hans Singh v. State of Punjab decided on 14.8.2008

In another case (FIR No. 61 dated 25.10.2001 under Sections 304-B of the Indian Penal Code), the appellant was convicted on 24.2.2004 by Court of Shri J.S. Chawla, the then learned Addl. Sessions Judge, Moga, and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of ten years. As per the affidavit, presented before this Court, the appellant was released from jail on 01.10.2007 after availing the remissions to the extent of 5 years, 2 months and 2 days.

2. Learned Single Judge further noticed that the convicts had been allowed remissions even in heinous cases in a very casual/liberal/lackadaisical manner. The note of the learned Single Judge was placed before the then Chief Justice on 25.11.2008 whereon suo moto notice of the matter was taken. That is how this writ petition by the Court on its own motion had arisen.

3. Upon notice, the State of Punjab filed various affidavits explaining as to how the remissions were granted in the cases notice whereof was taken by the learned Single Judge. On 7.8.2009, Addl. Advocate General appearing on behalf of the State of Punjab made a statement that the issue as to whether the parameters for remission have to be redrawn in terms of order dated 19.11.2008 passed by the learned Single Judge will be reconsidered. 4. The policy framed by the State Government lays down the class of prisoners who would be entitled to get the benefit of remission and also the period of remission to be granted to the prisoners as per the period of sentence awarded to them. make the grant of remission more orderly and rationally.

5. Since a policy has been framed by the State, no further direction in the matter is required. Therefore, the writ petition is disposed of with a direction to the State Government to notify the said policy within two weeks from today and thereafter to ensure that the said policy is strictly given effect to.
