Judgement

R.V. Raveendran, J.—Leave granted.

2. An extent of 1,06,864 sq.m. of land including 5070 sq.m. of land in Survey No. 284 (Part) in Pernem village of which the Appellants are co-owners was acquired in pursuance of preliminary notification dated 12.1.1990 (Gazetted on 1.2.1990). By award dated 27.3.1991, the Land Acquisition Officer awarded compensation for the acquired land at the rate of Rs. 17 per sq.m. As there were three tenants, namely, Krishna Arjun Kauthankar, Keshav Bhikaji Kauthankar and Harischandra Bhikaji Kauthankar and as the co-owners had admitted their tenancy rights, the Land Acquisition Officer directed that the compensation to be divided between the owners and the tenants at the rate of 50% each. The reference court, by judgment dated 22.11.2002, increased the compensation from Rs. 17 per sq.m. to Rs. 175 per sq.m. The appeal by the State was allowed by a division bench of the Bombay High Court, by the impugned judgment dated 14.11.2008. The High Court set aside the judgment and award of the reference court, thereby restoring the award of Rs. 17/- per sq.m. by the Land Acquisition Officer, on the following reasoning:

... the Applicants' acquired portion was garden land but tenanted and the tenants had become deemed purchasers of the same and the only interest which the applicants had in the said land was to receive the purchase price, and in such a case no willing purchaser would have ventured to purchase such a land for building purposes or for that matter for any other purpose from the applicants. The said Krishna Arjun Kauthankar and Ors. were in possession of the land and had become deemed owners of the same. The learned reference court was not right in assessing the value of the acquired land as having building potential based on several awards/sale instances which were of land dissimilar to the acquired land.

3. The said judgment is challenged in this appeal by special leave. At the outset the Appellants submitted that Late Rajinder Vasdev Deshprabhu (of whom Appellants are the LR's.) and his brother late Raghuraj Vasdev Deshprabhu were the co-owners of the property, and on their death their respective legal heirs have become the owners thereof; that the land was tenanted and is in occupation of Krishan Arjun Kauthankar and two others and vested in the tenants on the Tiller's day in terms of Section 18A of the Goa, Daman and Diu Agricultural Tenancy Act, 1964 ('Tenancy Act' for short). They submitted that they do not dispute the award of the Land Acquisition Officer apportioning 50% of the compensation to the landlords and 50% to the tenants; and that out of 50% payable to landlords, the Appellants are entitled to one half as the LR's. of Rajendra V. Deshprabhu and the remaining half is payable to the legal heirs of Raghuraj V. Deshprabhu. In other words the Appellants restrict their claim to 25% of the award amount and submitted that even in regard to any increase in compensation, they are entitled to only 25%.

4. The Appellants contend that in regard to the remaining extent of land acquired under the same notification, the High Court by judgment dated 14.11.2008 in FA No. 123/2003 The Deputy Collector (Dev.) and LAO, Panaji v. Smt. Sita Devi had determined the compensation as Rs. 78 per sq.m. and therefore the compensation should have been the same in regard to their land also. Therefore question for consideration is whether the compensation for the acquired land should be increased to Rs. 78/- per sq.m.

5. Respondents do not dispute that in regard to the adjoining lands compensation has been determined by the High Court at Rs. 78/- per sq.m. in Deputy Collector v. Sita Devi FA No. 123/2003 decided on 14.11.2008 and that order not having been challenged, has attained finality. They also do not dispute the position that if the acquired land had not been subject to any tenancy right, the land owners would have been entitled to compensation at the said rate of Rs. 78 per sq.m. They however contend that the land in question was different from the other acquired lands for which Rs. 78/- per sq.m. has been awarded as compensation. They supported the judgment of the High Court on the following grounds:

(i) As the land was in the occupation of tenants, the Appellants as owners would not have been able to sell the said land to any willing purchaser and obtain the market value. Even the tenants had obtained a purchase certificate u/s 18H, they could not have sold the property, as there was a restriction on transfer of the land purchased by the tenant in Section 18K of the Tenancy Act which required previous sanction of the Mamlatdar for sale.

(ii) Section 3 of the Tenancy Act provided that when a request is made by the owner of an agricultural land to convert it to non agricultural purpose, the authority concerned can grant conversion, or in public interest prohibit the conversion. There was thus no absolute right to get the land converted to non agricultural use and develop it for other non-agricultural purposes.

(iii) Section 2 of the Goa Land Use (Regulations) Act, 1991 ('Land Use Act' for short) provides that no land which vested in the tenant under the provisions of the Tenancy Act shall be used or allowed to be used for any purpose other than agriculture. As the land in question had vested in the tenants on the Tiller's Day (8.10.1976), the land had to be used only for agricultural purposes. The land therefore did not have the potential for development for any non-agricultural purpose and therefore will have to be valued only as an agricultural land. Even as agricultural land, the market value will not be the normal market value as it was tenanted.

6. We are not required to decide in this appeal, either the entitlement of the landlords/owners for compensation or the extent of share in the compensation. It is an admitted position that the land is tenanted and vested in the tenants u/s 18A of the Tenancy Act on the Tiller's Day (that is, 8.10.1976) and the tenants are deemed to have purchased the land. The purchase price u/s 18D of the Tenancy Act was not however paid to the landlords and no purchase certificate had been issued to the tenants u/s 18H of the Tenancy Act. According to the Appellants, where land is acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, before payment of the purchase price to the landlords u/s 18D of Tenancy Act and before the issue of purchase certificate to the tenants u/s 18H of the Tenancy Act, inspite of the vesting u/s 18A of the Tenancy Act, the compensation will be divided equally between the landlord and tenant as per standing instructions of the government. The Appellants contend that the said procedure had been followed by the Land Acquisition Officer in making the award by holding that 50% of the compensation was payable to the landlords and 50% of compensation was payable to the tenants. The Appellants submitted that neither the landlords, nor the tenants, have disputed the said apportionment and therefore this appeal does not involve any issue relating to entitlement to compensation or apportionment thereof. It was further submitted that the only issue in this appeal relates to the quantum of compensation. In view of the said submission, we have only considered the question of quantum in this appeal, and have not examined the rights of the landlord vis-à-vis the tenants.

7. We may first deal with the contention of the Respondents with reference to the Regulation of land use under the Land Use Act. Section 2 of the said Act provides that no land which is vested in a tenant under the provisions of the Tenancy Act shall be used or allowed to be used for any purpose other than agriculture. If the Land Use Act was applicable to the land at the time of acquisition, then the land could be used only as agricultural land and could be valued only as an agricultural land. But the Land Use Act, came into force with effect from 2.11.1990. The relevant date for the purpose of determination of compensation is the date of publication of preliminary notification u/s 4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 which is 1.2.1990. On that day the Land Use Act was not in force and consequently there was no restriction that the use land vested in the tenant should be used only for agricultural purposes. Therefore the market value of the land could be determined with reference to the development potential for non agricultural purposes.

8. The next contention of the Respondents is that a land purchased by a tenant under Chapter IIA of the Tenancy Act, could not be sold without the previous sanction of Mamlatdar, u/s 18K of the Tenancy Act. The mere fact that the sanction has to be obtained from Mamlatdar for sale of such land would not depress the price of the land, nor affect its potential for being developed as residential or industrial use.

9. The next contention of the Respondents was based on Section 3 of the Tenancy Act. Section 3 provides that if any owner of agricultural land applies for conversion thereof for non-agricultural use, the Government may, instead of granting conversion, prohibit such conversion in public interest. The risk not being permitted to convert the land should also be taken note of while assessing the market value with reference to development potential of the land. Such a contingency exists in regard to all agricultural lands and is not specific to the Appellants. In spite of Section 3 of Tenancy Act, compensation has been determined as Rs. 78/- per sq.m. for neighbouring agricultural lands and we see no reason why the said rate should not apply to the land in question also.

10. The High Court committed an error in holding that the compensation for the land in question should be lesser than the compensation for a land which is not subject to tenancy. It relied upon the decision of this Court in M.B. Gopal Krishna and others Vs. The Special Deputy Collector, Land Acquisition, wherein this Court observed:

A freehold land and one burdened with encumbrances do make a big difference in attracting willing buyers. A free hold land normally commands higher compensation while the land burdened with encumbrances secures lesser price. The fact of a tenant in occupation would be an encumbrance and no willing purchaser would willingly offer the same price as would be offered for a freehold land.

The said principle will apply only where a property subject to encumbrances is to be sold to a private purchaser or is acquired subject to the tenancy. The decision of this Court made those observations when upholding the compensation that was payable to the landlord, without reference to the tenant's rights, where the tenant did not claim any compensation. But in this case, the landlords have been awarded only 50% of the compensation amount and remaining 50% has been awarded to the tenants. The High Court has mixed up a sale subject to encumbrances with an acquisition free from encumbrances under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. The two are conceptually different. If a property subject to a lease and in the possession of a lessee is offered for sale by the owner to a prospective private purchaser, the purchaser being aware that on purchase he will get only title, but not possession and that the sale in his favour will be subject to an encumbrance, namely the lease, will offer a price taking note of the encumbrances. Naturally such a price would be less than the price of a property without any encumbrances. But when a land is acquired free from encumbrances, what is acquired is not only the landlord's right, but also the lessee's rights. In such a case compensation awarded is for the property free from encumbrances, which includes the lessee's rights also. We may illustrate by the following example:

Let us assume the value of a property which is not subject to any lease is Rs. Ten lakhs. If that property was subject to a lease and if the possession was with the lessee, a purchaser will offer only Rs. Five lakhs as he will be purchasing a property with an encumbrance and will not be getting physical possession. But when the property subject to a lease is acquired, under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, what is acquired is not only the landlord's right, title and interest, but also the lessee's right and interest. In other words the property with all rights, free from encumbrances is acquired and the compensation is determined and paid for the property as one free from encumbrances. The rights of lessor as well as lessee are extinguished. Therefore compensation payable will be the entire market value that is Rs. Ten lakhs which may be shared by the lessors and lessee at the rate of Rs. Five lakhs each or such other ratio as may be determined with reference to the extent of their respective rights. The Land Acquisition Officer issue notice to all persons interested and hears them before making the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested. The 'market value' of the property free from encumbrances acquired by the State will not therefore be the same as the price a purchaser may pay to buy the property subject to a lease (encumbrances).

11. As the High Court has already determined Rs. 78 per sq.m. as the compensation in regard to the adjoining lands acquired under the same notification vide its judgment dated 14.10.2008 Dy.Collector (Development) and Land Acquisition Officer, Panaji v. Smt. Sitadevi and Ors. in FA No. 123/2003 and the said judgment has attained finality, there is no reason why the same compensation should not be awarded for this land also. The Appellants have no grievance in regard to the apportionment made by the Land Acquisition Officer at the rate of 50% for the landlords and 50% for the tenants. The tenants apparently have not raised any dispute in regard to the apportionment. It is made clear that if any dispute regarding apportionment is pending, this decision shall not be construed as determining the percentage of entitlement of Appellants or other co-owners (not before us) or the tenants (not before us).

12. In view of the above, this appeal is allowed and the order of the High Court is modified by increasing the compensation for the acquired land from Rs. 17 per sq.m. to Rs. 78 per sq.m. All statutory benefits are also granted.
